

LAW

TO LANCH. v. a.
 1. To p. sh. to sea.
 All art is used to sink episcopacy, and launch presbytery, in England.
 With stays and cordage last he rigg'd the ship,
 And roll'd on leavers, launch'd her in the deep. Pope.
 2. To dart from the hand. This perhaps, for distinction sake, might better be written launch.
 The King of Heav'n, obscure on high,
 Ear'd his red arm, and launching from the sky
 His written bolt, not shaking empty smoke,
 Down to the deep abyss the flaming fellow strook. Dryd.
LAUND. n. f. [lande, French; laun, Welsh.] Lawn a plain extended between woods. Hammer.
 Under this thick-grown brake we'll shroud ourselves,
 For through this laund anon the deer will come;
 And in this covert will we make our stand,
 Culling the principal of all the deer. Shakesp. Henry VI.
LAUNDRESS. n. f. [lavandiere, French.] Skinner imagines that lavandresse may have been the old word.] A woman whose employment is to wash cloaths.
 The countess of Richmond would often say, On condition the princes of Christendom would march against the Turks, she would willingly attend them, and be their laundress. Camden.
 Take up these cloaths here quickly; carry them to the laundress in Datchet mead. Shakesp. Merry Wives of Windsor.
 The laundress must be sure to tear her smocks in the washing, and yet wash them but half. Swift.
LAUNDRY. n. f. [as if lavandrie.]
 1. The room in which clothes are washed.
 The affairs of the family ought to be consulted, whether they concern the stable, dairy, the pantry, or laundry. Swift.
 2. The act or state of washing.
 Chalky water is too fretting, as appeareth in laundry of cloaths, which wear out apace. Bacon's Natural History.
LAUOLTA. n. f. [la volte, French.] An old dance, in which was much turning and much capering. Hammer.
 I cannot sing,
 Nor heel the high lavolt; nor sweeten talk;
 Nor play at subtle games. Shakesp. Troilus and Cressida.
LAUREATE. adj. [laureatus, Lat.] Decked or invested with a laurel.
 Bid Amaranthus all his beauty shed,
 And daffodillies fill their cups with tears,
 To strew the laureate hearle where Lycid lies, Milton.
 Soft on her lap her laureate son reclines. Dunciad.
LAUREATION. n. f. [from laureate.] It denotes, in the Scottish universities, the act or state of having degrees conferred, as they have in some of them a flowery crown, in imitation of laurel among the antients.
LAUREL. n. f. [laurus, Lat. laurier, French.] A tree, called also the cherry bay.
 It hath broad thick shining ever-green leaves, somewhat like those of the bay tree; the cup of the flower is hollow, and funnel-shaped, spreading open at the top, and is divided into five parts: the flower consists of five leaves, which expand in form of a rose, having many stamina in the centre; the fruit, which is like that of the cherry tree, is produced in bunches, and the stone is longer and narrower than that of the cherry. Miller.
 The laurus or laurel of the antients is affirmed by naturalists to be what we call the bay tree. Ainsworth.
 The laurel, meed of mighty conquerors,
 And poets sage. Spenser's Fairy Queen.
 The laurel or cherry-bay, by cutting away the side branches, will rise to a large tree. Mortimer's Husbandry.
LAURELED. adj. [from laurel.] Crowned or decorated with laurel.
 Hear'st thou the news? my friend! th' express is come
 With laurel'd letters from the camp to Rome. Dryden.
 Then future ages with delight shall see
 How Plato's, Bacon's, Newton's, looks agree;
 Or in fair series laurel'd bards be shown
 A Virgil there, and here an Addison. Pope.
LAW. n. f. [laga, Saxon; loi, French; lawgh, Erse.]
 1. A rule of action.
 Unhappy man! to break the pious laws
 Of nature, pleading in his children's cause. Dryden.
 2. A decree, edict, statute, or custom, publicly established as a rule of justice.
 He hath resisted law,
 And therefore law shall scorn him further trial
 Than the severity of publick power. Shakesp. Coriolanus.
 Thou art a robber,
 A law-breaker, a villain; yield thee, thief. Shakesp. Lear.
 Our nation would not give laws to the Irish, therefore now the Irish gave laws to them. Davies on Ireland.
 One law is split into two. Baker Reflect. on Learning.
 3. Judicial process.
 When every case in law is right. Shakesp. King Lear.
 Who has a breast so pure,
 But some uncleanly apprehensions
 Keep leets and law days, and in sessions sit,
 With meditations lawful. Shakesp. Othello.

LAW

Tom Touchy is a fellow famous for taking the law of every body: there is not one in the town where he lives that he has not sued at a quarter-sessions. Addison's Spectator.
 4. Conformity to law; any thing lawful.
 In a rebellion,
 When what's not meet, but what must be, was law,
 Then were they chosen. Shakesp. Coriolanus.
 5. An established and constant mode or process; a fixed correspondence of cause and effect.
 I dy'd, whilst in the womb he stay'd,
 Attending Nature's law. Shakesp. Cymbeline.

 It is not lawful for thee to have her. Mat. xiv. 4.
 Gloster's bastard son was kinder to his father, than my daughters, got 'tween the lawful sheets. Shakesp. King Lear.
LA'WFULLY. adv. [from lawful.] Legally; agreeably to law.
 This bond is forfeit;
 And lawfully by this the Jew may claim
 A pound of flesh. Shakesp. Merchant of Venice.
 Though it be not against strict justice for a man to do those things which he might otherwise lawfully do, albeit his neighbour doth take occasion from thence to conceive in his mind a false belief, yet Christian charity will, in many cases, refrain a man. South's Sermons.
 I may be allowed to tell your lordship, the king of poets, what an extent of power you have, and how lawfully you may exercise it. Dryden's Dedication to Juvenal.
LA'WFULNESS. n. f. [from lawful.] Legality; allowance of law.
 I think it were an error to speak further, till I may see some sound foundation laid of the lawfulness of the action. Bacon's Holy War.
LA'WGIVER. n. f. [law and giver.] Legillator; one that makes laws.
 Solomon we esteem as the lawgiver of our nation. Bacon.

Lawgiving heroes, fam'd for taming brutes,
 And raising cities with their charming lutes. Waller.
LA'WLESS. adj. [from law.]
 1. Unrestrained by any law; not subject to law.
 The necessity of war, which among human actions is the most lawless, hath some kind of affinity with the necessity of law. Raleigh's Essays.
 The lawless tyrant, who denies
 To know their God, or message to regard,
 Must be compell'd. Milton's Paradise Lost, b. xii.
 Orpheus did not, as poets feign, tame savage beasts,
 But men as lawless, and as wild as they. Resolomon.
 Not the gods, nor angry Jove will bear
 Thy lawless wand'ring walks in open air. Dryd. Eu.
 Blind as the Cyclops, and as blind as he,
 They own'd a lawless savage liberty,
 Like that our painted ancestors for priz'd,
 Ere empire's arts their breasts had civiliz'd. Dryden.
 He Meteor-like, flames lawless through the void,
 Destroying others, by himself destroy'd. Pope.
 2. Contrary to law; illegal.
 Take not the quarrel from his powerful arms,
 He needs no indirect nor lawless course
 To cut off those that have offended him. Shakesp. R. III.
 We cite our faults,
 That they may hold excus'd our lawless lives. Shakesp.
 Thou the first, lay down thy lawless claim;
 Thou of my blood who bear'st the Julian name. Dryden.
LA'WLESSLY. adv. [from lawless.] In a manner contrary to law.

 Stern beasts in trains that by his truncheon fell,
 Now grilly forms shoot o'er the lawns of hell. Pope.
 Interpers'd in lawns and opening glades,
 Thin trees arise that shun each other's shades. Pope.
 2. [Linon, French.] Fine linen, remarkable for being used in the sleeves of bishops.
 Should'st thou bleed,
 To stop the wounds my finest lawn I'd tear,
 Wash them with tears, and wipe them with my hair. Prior.

LAY

From high life high characters are drawn,
 A faint in crape is twice a faint in lawn.
 What awe did the slow solemn knell inspire:
 The duties by the lawn rob'd prelate pay'd.
 And the last words, that duff to duff convey'd! Tickell.
LA'WSUIT. n. f. [law and suit.] A process in law; a litigation.
 The giving the priest a right to the tithe would produce lawsuits and wrangles; his necessary attendance on the courts of justice would leave his people without a spiritual guide. Swift's Proposal.
LAWYER. n. f. [from law.] Professor of law; advocate; pleader.
 It is like the breath of an unfeeling lawyer, you gave me nothing for it. Shakesp. King Lear.
 Is the law evil, because some lawyers in their office swerve from it? Whitgift.
 I have entered into a work touching laws, in a middle term, between the speculative and reverend discourses of philosophers, and the writings of lawyers. Bacon's Holy War.
 The nymphs with scorn beheld their foes,
 When the defendant's council rose;
 And, what no lawyer ever lack'd,
 With impudence own'd all the fact. Swift.
LAX. adj. [laxus, Latin.]
 1. Loose; not confined; not closely joined.
